The History of Coffee.

850 Discovery of coffee beans. Legend states that an Ethiopian goat herder, named Kaldi, noticed his goats were friskier after eating the red berries.

1100 The first recorded instance of coffee beans being broken from the cherries, then being roasted and boiled by Arabs to make "qahwa" - a hot soup like beverage.

1475 The world's first coffee shop opens in Constantinople (Istanbul).

1600 Coffee enters Europe through Venice, Italy. One historical account states that in 1652 the first coffeehouse in Europe opened in England. Coffeehouses became known as "Penny Universities."

1683 Kolschitzsky's Coffeehouse is opened by a Polish Serb, who had been in the employ of the Ottoman Army as they occupied Vienna. The Turks hired Kolschitzsky and taught him how to prepare the coffee beverage from the beans they had brought with them. After the army moved on, he opened his own coffeehouse, to serve citizens of Vienna.

1685 The first official record of the granting of a coffee-serving privilege in Vienna was that of a license to an Armenian merchant named Deodato.

1688 Edward Lloyd opened his coffeehouse in London, which grew very popular. A group of insurers eventually created an insurance consortium from their meetings there, and called the company "Lloyd's of London", after the coffeehouse which served as their base.

1713 King Louis XIV of France receives a coffee tree. Sugar was first used as an additive to coffee in the King's court.

1723 Coffee plants were introduced to the Americas for cultivation.

1727 The Brazilian coffee industry gets its start with seedlings smuggled out of Paris.

1905 First commercial espresso machine is manufactured in Italy.

1908 Melitta Bentz uses blotting paper to make the world's first drip filter, in Germany.

1938 The Nestlé Company invents instant coffee as it assists the Brazilian government in solving its coffee surplus problem.

1948 Achille Gaggia invents the espresso piston to create the first true caffè espress, or fast coffee, machine.

2000 Coffee is the world's most popular beverage. More than 400 billion cups are consumed each year. It is a world commodity that is second only to oil in total traded value.

2019 Jasher & Lisa FeellLove open the world's first "FeellLove Coffee" in St. George, Utah.
